Horses and Galloway Cattle – for Superior Pasture Management

We know horses can be choosy about the sort of pasture they graze. Over time this can lead to less preferred grasses, let alone weeds, taking over your horse paddocks.

One proven strategy to manage this is to introduce Galloway cattle to your horse paddocks to clean up after your horse has selected the tastiest grasses. Galloways, in research by the Mols Institute in Denmark, have been proven to be one of the least selective grazers amongst cattle breeds, meaning the grasses your horse doesn't find palatable will be eaten down, and not go to seed and spread throughout your paddocks, gradually taking over. Grazing cattle and horses together also minimizes horse worm burdens, particularly redworm.

Galloway cattle are quiet and easy to handle, with no horns. They are the ultimate low management easy care animal to protect your horse paddocks.

They are attractive to look at, but can also turn you a dollar, as established purchasing pathways exist. Galloways Australia have members in all the major horse regions of NSW, and would be happy to assist in helping you get your hands on some Galloways.

Better pasture management and money in the pocket. It really is a Win-Win!
